Dear Peter,

I have pleasure in advising you that JAS-ANZ has reviewed the National Structural Steelwork Compliance (NSSC) Scheme and found it to be suitable for use in JAS-ANZ accredited certification.

In reviewing the scheme, JAS-ANZ has gained confidence that the scheme has been developed with appropriate input from significantly interested parties and is capable of meeting the anticipated needs of end users.

JAS-ANZ expects scheme owners to monitor the performance of their schemes on an ongoing basis. This is particularly important for early versions of schemes as well as in rapidly changing sectors or technologies.

JAS-ANZ normally revisits recognition of schemes at least every five years, or earlier if required. In the meantime, we would ask that you advise us of any planned changes to the NSSC Scheme, or ASI's internal organisation and/or co-operative relationships that might adversely impact on the proper operation of the Scheme. We would further ask to be promptly advised of any identified failures or other events which may impact the public acceptance of the NSSC Scheme.

As the owner of a JAS-ANZ recognised scheme, the Australian Steel Institute has the option to sign a Licence enabling use of the JAS-ANZ Accreditation Symbol on materials developed to promote or manage the NSSC Scheme. A copy of the Licence is available from JAS-ANZ upon request.

Your primary contact within JAS-ANZ now that the scheme has been recognised will be Mr Peter lee, our Sector Manager for Product.

Congratulations and best wishes for the future operation of the NSSC Scheme.

Kind regards,

Brett Abraham
